

An open letter to the American Board of Medical Specialties and the Federation of State Medical Boards: The destruction of Member Boards' credibility

June 26, 2022

To Whom It May Concern,

We are writing to condemn, in the strongest terms, the decision by several certification boards and/or medical boards (i.e. ABIM, ABP, etc) to review the board certification of Dr. Peter McCullough, Dr. Paul Marik, Dr. Pierre Kory, Dr. Ramin Oskoui, Dr. John Littell, Dr. Ryan Cole, Dr. Casey Delcoco, Dr. Elizabeth Laffay, and perhaps many others, on the frivolous grounds that they are spreading "medical misinformation". Your actions against the leading medical doctors, that have pioneered the development and deployment of treatment protocols against COVID-19, and who are now making similar efforts towards the treatment of patients that have been injured by the COVID-19 vaccines, threatens the right to life and the well-being of the American public.

Dr. Peter McCullough is an accomplished medical researcher with a powerful publication record¹ in the area of cardiorenal medicine. He is also one of the acknowledged experts on COVID-19, with more than 50 peer-reviewed research publications on the pandemic response to COVID-19. He is best known for the development of the early outpatient McCullough treatment protocol² for COVID-19. He has co-authored several more publications³ with supporting evidence for the early outpatient treatment of COVID-19, and he has also published on COVID-19 vaccine safety⁴. In addition, he has successfully treated COVID-19 patients in clinical practice and he is currently confronted with the need to treat patients that have been injured by the COVID-19 vaccines, that some have taken willingly and others under coercion by vaccine mandates. He has an encyclopedic knowledge of COVID-19 research and he has meticulously cited the scientific literature in all of his public commentary. With his vast experience and expert knowledge, he is a national treasure and a resource that you have failed to consult throughout the pandemic.

Likewise, Dr. Pierre Kory, Dr. Paul Marik, and his FLCCC collaborators were monitoring the research literature from the beginning of the pandemic, and they were diligently making monthly white paper reports on the treatment of both COVID-19 outpatients and inpatients, based on their systematic literature review and their direct clinical experience. Their efforts culminated in the development of the MATH+ protocol⁵ for the treatment of hospitalized COVID-19 patients, the related IMASK+ protocol⁶ for prophylaxis and early outpatient treatment of COVID-19, and the I-RECOVER protocols for the treatment of Long Covid syndrome⁷ and COVID-19 vaccine injuries⁸.

Dr. Kory is an accomplished researcher with 56 peer-reviewed publications, of which 11 publications were focused on the treatment of COVID-19. His publication⁹ explaining that Covid pneumonia was an organizing rather than a viral pneumonia was key in understanding the inflammatory phase of Covid. Dr. Kory is considered one of the world pioneers in the use of ultrasound by physicians in the diagnosis and treatment of critically ill patients. He is also one of the pioneers in the United States in the research, development and teaching of performing therapeutic hypothermia to treat post-cardiac arrest patients. He has also pioneered, in collaboration with Dr Paul Marik, the research and treatment of septic shock.

Dr. Marik has special knowledge and training in a diverse set of medical fields, with specific training in Internal Medicine, Critical Care, Neurocritical Care, Pharmacology, Anesthesia, Nutrition, and Tropical Medicine and Hygiene. Dr. Marik has written over 500 peer-reviewed journal articles, 80 book chapters, authored four critical care books, and he is the senior editor of the only published textbook¹⁰ on COVID-19. He has been cited over 43,000 times in peer-reviewed publications and has an H-index of 77. He has delivered over 350 lectures at international conferences and visiting professorships. He has received numerous teaching awards, including the National Teacher of the Year award by the American College of Physicians in 2017. He is the 2nd most published critical care physician in the world ever, and is a world renowned expert in the management of sepsis. His contributions to the understanding and management of the hemodynamic, fluid, nutritional, and supportive care practices in sepsis have transformed the care of patients throughout the world. He also led the Society of Critical Care Medicine task force on corticosteroids in sepsis. He has already co-authored 18 papers on many therapeutic aspects of COVID-19.

Dr. Ramin Oskoui advised the Trump administration on COVID-19 issues and testified before the U.S. Senate about COVID-19 treatment in November 2020. He has co-authored 3 research papers on the treatment of COVID-19. He was named 2015 Physician of the Year by Johns Hopkins Medicine Clinical Awards for Physicians and Care Teams, won the annual Patients' Choice Award many times and was named a Top Doctor in the Washington, D.C.-Baltimore area by Castle Connolly and Washingtonian Magazine. Dr. Oskoui has also received Compassionate Doctor Recognition and was named a 2014 Top 10 Doctor in the District of Columbia for Cardiologists. He has expertise in acute coronary syndromes, cardiac catheterization, cardiomyopathy, cardiovascular disease, congenital heart disease, valvular heart disease, echocardiography and transesophageal echocardiography, high cholesterol, hypertension, pacemakers and preventive cardiology.

At this time, the treatment of COVID-19 and the safety and efficacy of the COVID-19 vaccines is an ongoing area of active research. COVID-19 itself has been a moving target, with the emergence of new variants requiring the updating of treatment protocols, continuing reconsideration of the balance of risks and benefits of COVID-19 vaccinations, and recalculation of our current status with respect to herd immunity. It has been long recognized, for more than a century, that academic freedom, enabling researchers to publish and present to the public their findings without fear of institutional reprisal to their livelihood, is absolutely crucial, and has played a major and essential role in establishing the United States as the preeminent leading force in scientific research. Medical researchers, like Dr. Peter McCullough and Dr. Pierre Kory, require academic freedom to conduct research and communicate their findings, in their area of expertise to the public, without fear of institutional reprisal against their livelihood. Your ill-conceived crusade against "medical misinformation" is in fact being aimed in part at destroying the academic freedom of some of the most experienced and qualified independent COVID-19 researchers of the United States. It is the individual medical researchers that have the duty to publicly speak against any incorrect or outdated recommendations or decisions by our public health agencies and to hold them accountable, and more broadly to counter genuine medical misinformation. The public should be able to hear many perspectives from teams of medical doctors that may disagree and have different viewpoints with respect to the current status of the research literature on the current pandemic response.

It is a beyond unacceptable circular reasoning fallacy to use the opinions of public health agencies, including the FDA, CDC, NIH, and WHO, to define what is or is not "medical misinformation" and then use that to investigate the board certification of the medical researchers that are conducting the actual research which these public health agencies depend on to justify their recommendations. Medical researchers, at the cutting edge of COVID-19 research, will inevitably be ahead of the curve, relative to the aforementioned agencies, because information flows from the medical researchers to the agencies, under the most ideal conditions. Under the current conditions, the regulatory capture¹¹ and corruption¹² of these agencies, and the financial conflicts of interest, caused by the regulators being the sponsors of the COVID-19 vaccine program, have completely disqualified them from serving as neutral adjudicators of medical misinformation with regards to the COVID-19 vaccines and the competing prophylactic and treatment options.

There have been more than a million deaths in the United States. In the Covid era, there are not as yet "well established medical facts." The officially proclaimed viewpoints are constantly changing in response to rapidly changing events, in particular, the unprecedented mutational changes occurring in the various lineages of the original SARS-CoV-2 virus. The recurrent changes in mask guidance emanating from CDC are only one indication of confusion of the United States public health hierarchy. The often stated consensus that the COVID -19 vaccines are safe and effective, as if that was accepted medical certainty, is contradicted by many different facts. The CDC has admitted that the current COVID-19 vaccines do not prevent transmission in public statements, and has also admitted, via their booster recommendations, that benefit conferred by the COVID-19 vaccines is transient. The CDC VAERS database¹³ has shown substantial injuries and deaths associated with COVID-19 vaccination, which are temporally associated with the timing of vaccine dose¹⁴, and occur at an increased rate with an increasing number of doses¹⁵. The mechanisms of action for vaccine injuries are known¹⁶, and a recent report¹⁷ by the World Council for Health has found consistent findings of vaccine injuries and deaths across the CDC VAERS, WHO VigiAccess, EudraVigilance, and the UK Yellowcard databases, and has called for the recall of the COVID-19 vaccines. In a large number of European nations and Canada, the Moderna mRNA 1273 vaccine is discouraged for adolescents and young men. A recent publication¹⁸ highlighted the dangers of post vaccination myocarditis and pericarditis in France, which still allows the Moderna vaccine. Only in the United States is the Moderna mRNA1273 vaccine authorized for administration to tiny children and adolescents with no questions. Clearly, at this time the consensus of U.S. government health agencies is not accepted in other countries. The FDA has called for the development of new vaccine formulations to deal with the failure of the ancestral alpha variant products to handle the massive surges arising from Omicron and its many variants. There is clearly not an overwhelming scientific consensus supporting the claim that the current COVID-19 vaccines are safe and effective.

Likewise, at this time, substantial scientific evidence in support of the safety and efficacy of hydroxychloroquine-based multi-drug treatment protocols has been reviewed by Risch¹⁹ showing that they are safe and effective when used at the early stages of the illness. Additional evidence include Raoult's study²⁰ with more than 10,000 patients, as well as case series data²¹ that meet the clear and convincing evidentiary standard. There is also supporting meta-analysis for India's hydroxychloroquine prophylaxis protocol²² and the underlying mechanism of action is well-known²³. Likewise, about the ivermectin-based multi-drug protocols, it is known that ivermectin has 20 known mechanisms of action against COVID-19²⁴. This alone is sufficient to justify physicians prescribing this medication off-label to treat COVID-19, given the excellent safety record of the medication. A recent review²⁵ of the research literature, including previous meta-analysis studies of ivermectin, shows that there is a clear signal of efficacy against COVID-19, and disentangles some of the controversies in the literature. Most notable is a recently published study²⁶ that has shown that, with a small cohort of severely ill patients, who refused hospitalization in spite of severe symptomatic presentation and severe hypoxia, a new innovative protocol based on a combination therapy of ivermectin, doxycycline, zinc, vitamin C, and vitamin D3, over a period of 10 days, prevented hospitalization and death and resulted in improved oxygen levels, within 24 hours of onset of treatment. The ACTIV6 study²⁷, proclaimed by the media to demonstrate ineffectiveness of ivermectin, actually showed a large statistically significant benefit in a subgroup of patients with severe disease at onset of trial. Likewise, the TOGETHER trial²⁸ has several methodological flaws²⁹, but taken at face value, they tested a 3-day low-dose ivermectin monotherapy against placebo, so their results are not informative about the multidrug ivermectin-based protocols used by practicing physicians.

Under article 37 of the 2013 Helsinki declaration³⁰: “In the treatment of an individual patient, where proven interventions do not exist or other known interventions have been ineffective, the physician, after seeking expert advice, with informed consent from the patient or a legally authorised representative, may use an unproven intervention if in the physician's judgement it offers hope of saving life, re-establishing health or alleviating suffering. This intervention should subsequently be made the object of research, designed to evaluate its safety and efficacy. In all cases, new information must be recorded and, where appropriate, made publicly available.” A minority of medical doctors in the United States, as well as abroad, following article 37, were able to discover and use safe and effective treatment protocols against COVID-19, based on repurposed medications with acceptable safety. At the beginning of the pandemic, medical doctors received guidance from the NIH to refuse to treat COVID-19 outpatients, in direct violation of both article 37 as well as medical common sense. Both state and national medical boards have failed to support the minority of doctors that acted ethically, and saved countless lives by doing so, from adverse actions and professional reprisals.

On the contrary, this "medical misinformation" crusade by the medical boards has been aimed at intensifying the persecution of these hero doctors, like Dr. Ramin Oskoui, Dr. John Litell, Dr. Ryan Cole, Dr. Casey Delcoco, Dr. Elizabeth Laffay, and perhaps many others that made available to the American public lifesaving early outpatient treatment and prophylaxis options against COVID-19, suggesting an intent to make early outpatient treatment protocols unavailable to the American public. The public expects to see a healthy scientific debate on novel experimental treatments for COVID-19, and being given the opportunity to hear multiple points of view will increase public confidence in the medical profession. We have enduring confidence in the ability of our people to make personal decisions based on the presentation of differing opinions. On the other hand, public confidence in the medical boards themselves and the medical profession at large will be severely damaged, when the public sees that medical boards are engaging in actions that intend to cut off the public's access to off-label life-saving treatment protocols, as has been done in other nations abroad, and to chill the free speech rights of our medical doctors to question the safety and efficacy of novel and experimental medical interventions that are currently under research.

State and national medical boards have also failed to support medical ethics with respect to the COVID 19 vaccine mandates. Although some COVID-19 vaccines received provisional BLA approval under the labels Comirnaty and Spikevax, on questionable scientific grounds, the vaccine manufacturers are only making them available to the American public under the EUA labels. Consequently, at this time, all vaccine mandates are in clear direct violation of well-established medical ethics against coerced medical experimentation, without informed consent³¹. Both state and national medical boards have failed to take a stand against this blatant violation of medical ethics by the federal and state governments as well as some private employers. They have also failed to speak up in support of the long-held Federal regulatory standard that considers any adverse event or death reported in temporal association with receipt of a novel or experimental therapy to be caused by the intervention until proven otherwise, which has been abandoned by the US Federal and State agencies, which are now dismissing adverse-event reports, as unrelated to the vaccines, until proven otherwise.

An interesting legal analysis by Coleman³², who is clearly in favor of the official narrative promoted by the NIH, FDA, and CDC, concludes that: "imposing disciplinary penalties on physicians for speech that takes place outside a physician-patient relationship would have dangerous policy implications and would almost certainly be unconstitutional", and notes that "disciplinary actions would be appropriate under one set of circumstances: if a board can establish that a physician has disseminated information that she knows to be false or with reckless disregard as to whether it is true". It is not for the FSMB or specialty boards to enforce consensus orthodoxies. This is the death of medical progress. It creates a chilling effect to the detriment of patients. Doctors who treat patients counter to so-called "official" positions risk litigation for bad results. That is sufficient threat that doctors would only do so with good evidence of benefit. Censorship of doctors for espousing public statements against consensus exceeds the authority granted to the boards by state governments to enfranchise their doctors. If the boards were just private organizations, there could be competing private boards and doctors would choose which ones aligned with their viewpoints. But the boards are licensing agents of state governments and limiting all contrary speech is overreach. Coleman's argument is that the boards only have jurisdiction when doctors make statements that they know are false or misleading. Just being against consensus per se is not sufficient. In light of the previously reviewed scientific evidence that support the adoption of early treatment protocols and the serious concerns about the safety of the COVID-19 vaccines, we are confident that Coleman's legal standard is not applicable to Dr. McCullough and his colleagues.

There are certainly arguments going in all directions relative to the approaches, thus far only partially successful, to deal with the scourge of COVID-19. The prevailing medical consensus has been constantly shifting on masking, composition of vaccines which offer protection against COVID-19, and even authorized treatments such as monoclonal antibodies which have been authorized and then rescinded as the virus has mutated. Physicians on all sides have arguments based on analysis of evidence and all appear to strongly believe their positions. Open debate and discussion is the proper approach for sorting out these arguments. However, when one side abuses their position of authority, as medical board members, to persecute and silence the other side, with disregard or even contempt for the scientific evidence that supports the opposing side, and in doing so also undermines public trust in the medical profession, then one may ask whether it is these medical board members themselves that should be disciplined for unprofessional conduct.

³¹ The long-held standard for informed consent requires the full disclosure of the most current and accurate data regarding all potential risks benefits and alternatives to the COVID-19 mRNA vaccines.

Certification of competence is a doctor's fundamental property right. It is untenable to attempt to remove fundamental property rights on the basis of statements taken out of context, media clips and interpretations and hearsay. In the long run, we expect that any actions taken against Dr. Peter McCullough, Dr. Pierre Kory, and their colleagues, combined with the failure of member medical boards to stand up for medical ethics, will destroy the credibility of your member Boards. We also expect that future state and federal administrations, as well as congressional committees, will be curious and interested in investigating the real reasons for the persecution of our most exemplary and most ethical medical doctors and medical researchers. Should the ABIM not drop their threat against Dr Peter McCullough, the public demands an open meeting as requested by Senator Ron Johnson to be attended by ABIM Board and their Credentials and Certification Committee with Dr. McCullough and other COVID-19 experts. This meeting should be a fair-balanced scientific review concerning early treatment of COVID-19, nonfatal and fatal COVID-19 vaccine serious adverse events, and vaccine efficacy concerning serious outcomes of COVID-19 hospitalization and death.

note from David Kennedy: I strongly condemn your actions against good doctors interested in healing Covid19 infections. Your actions will be compared to Dr. Semmelweis detractors. If you don't know who Semmelweis was then you should because he was absolute right (wash your hands) and the world-renowned experts who suffered arrogance and ignorance disagreed were wrong.

Emmanuel Wingels
Internal auditor
Wezembeek-Oppem, Belgium

Note from Emmanuel Wingels: In response to your call for action regarding the open letter to the American Board of Medical Specialties and the Federation of State Medical Boards, in which you denounce the boards' attempts to discredit and even decertify several world renowned medical experts like Dr. McCullough, Dr Kory, and Dr. Cole, I - a Belgian citizen - would like to express my support to your cause. Any effort to silence doctors who have continually defended public interest, who have been open for scientific debate since the start of the health crisis and who have stoically spoken out against the atrocities committed by "big pharma" (in support of national governments, "big tech" and "big media") must, indeed, be condemned in the strongest way possible.

Janci C. Lindsay, Ph.D
Director of Toxicology & Molecular Biology Toxicology Support Services, LLC.
Phone: (832)646-1378

Note from Janci C. Lindsay: I am strongly in opposition to removing Dr. McCullough for having the courage to stand up when others would not. These genetic vaccines are neither safe or effective. You have to be living under a rock not to have seen the data that supports this. Rather than except failure and admit these genetic vaccines are not fit for purpose... the goal post for both safety and efficacy keeps moving. Find YOUR courage and keep to your oath-- First Do No Harm.

Catherine Gandolfi
Engineer
Germany

Note from Catherine Gandolfi: We used the protocols and advice from these doctors. We caught omicron but we had mild symptoms. We cleared the positive test in 3 days. When I checked the clinical studies for the injections, I was shocked by the poor statistics and demonstration. The fear mongering and coercion made me skeptical. My trust in medicine collapsed. On the other hand, these brave doctors try to help humanity. The current propaganda makes me think of car dealers...
