

How Rockefeller Founded Big Pharma And Waged War On Natural Cures

webhealth.space/how-rockefeller-founded-big-pharma-and-waged-war-on-natural-cures/

February 11, 2022

How the Rockefeller Foundation Oppressed Natural Medicine for a Century

How the Rockefeller Foundation Oppressed Natural Medicine for a Century

It's high time that people realized that western medicine or allopathy (mainstream medicine), which focuses on drugs, drugs, radiation, drugs, surgery, drugs, and more drugs, is a money-spinning Rockefeller creation.

When someone talks about the healing properties of plants or any other holistic practices, some people may look like a weirdo after hearing it. Nowadays, money and politics have been used to twist the minds of people to encourage them to embrace what is bad for them.

It all began with the American's first billionaire in the name of John D. Rockefeller (1839 – 1937) who was an oil magnate, a natural-born monopolist, and a robber baron.

By the turn of the 20th century, Rockefeller, through his oil company, Standard Oil, controlled 90% of all oil refineries in the U.S. Later on, his company broke up to become Exxon, Mobil, Chevron, etc.

The World Affairs reports that:

“At the same time, around 1900, scientists discovered “petrochemicals” and the ability to create all kinds of chemicals from oil. For example, the first plastic — called Bakelite — was made from oil in 1907. Scientists were discovering various vitamins and guessed that many pharmaceutical drugs could be made from oil.”

Rockefeller saw a wonderful opportunity to monopolize the oil, chemical, and the medical industries at the same time! When it comes to petrochemicals, everything about it could be patented and sold for high profits.

However, Rockefeller's plan for the medical industry faced one problem: At that time, natural or herbal medicines were very popular in America. With the use of knowledge obtained from Native Americans and Europe, almost half the doctors and medical colleges in the U.S. were practicing holistic medicine.

In order to get rid of his biggest competition, Rockefeller used the classic strategy of “problem-reaction-solution.” This would include the creation of a problem and scaring people, and then offering them a (pre-planned) solution. (Similar to terrorism scare, followed by the “Patriot Act”).

He went to his buddy Andrew Carnegie who devised a scheme. Carnegie is another plutocrat who made his money from monopolizing the steel industry. The Carnegie Foundation sent Abraham Flexner to travel around the country and report on the status of hospitals and medical colleges around the country.

The Flexner Report was then made and this gave birth to modern medicine as we know it. The report talked about the need for revamping and centralizing our medical institutions. More than half of all medical colleges were soon closed, based on this report.

Homeopathy and natural medicines were mocked and demonized and even doctors were jailed.

Rockefeller gave more than $100 million to colleges, hospitals and founded a philanthropic front group called “General Education Board” (GEB) in order to help with the transition and change the minds of other doctors and scientists.

Medical colleges were all streamlined and homogenized in a very short time. The same thing was learned by all the students and medicine was all about the use of patented drugs.

Huge grants to study how plants cured diseases were received by scientists, yet their goal was to identify first which chemicals in the plant were effective. After identifying, they would recreate a similar chemical, but not identical, in the lab that could be patented.

Thereby, a pill for an ill became the mantra for modern medicine.

And now, after 100 years, a lot of doctors know nothing about the numerous benefits of herbs or nutrition or any holistic practices. Our society has been enslaved to corporations for its well-being.

In the U.S., Americans spend 15 percent of its GDP on healthcare, which should be really called “sick care.” It focuses only on symptoms and not on the cure that is why it creates repeated customers. There is no cure for flu, diabetes, cancer, asthma, or autism.

The system is founded by oligarchs and plutocrats, not by doctors. Why would there be real cures?

When it comes to cancer, the American Cancer Society was founded by none other than Rockefeller in 1913.

It's so sad to know that cancer patients are being brainwashed about chemotherapy, radiation, and surgery.